

A Bad Day

Peter had a bad day. In the morning, Peter wanted to watch a film in a cinema. Therefore he took a bus. On the bus, a man sat behind him. The man sang the alphabet song loudly. Peter and the passengers were annoyed. Peter said, 'Can you please speak softly? You're so noisy.' The man ignored him. Peter felt mad and shouted, 'Please stop singing loudly, sir.' This time the man replied, 'No, I like singing!' Peter was furious.

After six minutes, the bus finally arrived at the cinema. Peter was excited, just like someone with a cup of ice cream. Suddenly, he realized it was twelve fifteen. He wanted to watch Superpig. He had to wait for his cousin, Billy, to come. Billy was late. After thirty minutes, Billy still didn't arrive and the film had already started fifteen minutes ago. Peter was extremely mad.

In the end, Billy finally arrived after the film ended. Peter wasted his money for buying tickets to watch Superpig. Billy apologized. Peter forgave Billy. Then they went to an ice cream shop and Billy bought some ice cream for them to eat. They ate the ice cream happily.
