

A quarrel with a friend

Monday 3rd May, 2019

What an awful day! My friend laughed at me in the park. Today Katie and I went to the park to play. There were slides, swings, see-saws and a lot more! Katie said we would play on the swings first and saw who could swing higher. I agreed with her.

We went to the swings and sat on it. When we started to swing, Katie saw a lizard and cried out loud. When I heard her cry, I was startled and fell off the swing. Katie saw me and laughed out loud. She said, 'Look at her everyone! She looks like the lizard I just saw on the ground! Haha!' Everyone laughed at me. I was so embarrassed and hurt. I thought to myself, 'Why is my best friend so mean to me?' I went home with scratches on my knees.

After I arrived home, I put on some bandages and had my lunch. I was still sad about my best friend being so mean. When I was having lunch, my phone rang. I picked it up. It was Katie. She said, 'I'm very sorry I laughed at you in the park. I didn't know I'd hurt your feelings so much. I'm so sorry. By the way, are you hurt after you fell off the swing?' I said, 'I'm okay. I know you didn't hurt my feelings on purpose. I'll forgive you.' And we became friends again.
